Takes Life With Bullet

J. S. E. Hitchcock, Former Coshocton Man, Suicides at Home in Pittsburg

Leaving a note in which he stated that he had decided "to try the sleepy side," J. S. E. Hitchcock, former Pacific Express Co. agent in Coshocton, took his own life by sending a bullet through his brain at his home in Pittsburg Tuesday night.

Just what caused Hitchcock to commit the rash act has not been determined. His wife and two children are at a sanitarium at Cresson, Pa.

Left Six Years Ago
Hitchcock was general agent for the Wells Fargo Express Co. at Pittsburg. He was located in Coshocton for a period of five years, leaving her six years ago for Cincinnati, from where he was moved to Detroit and later to Pittsburg. His family resided on West Main street. The victim was about 40 years of age and a member of the Elk and Masonic lodges.

Attempt Made to Burglarize Home

Some time Tuesday night an attempt was made to burglarize the residence of I. M. Smith on Locust street. Owing to the bunglesome work of the would-be burglar he failed to gain entrance to the house.

Window "Jimmied"
Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Smith discovered that one of the rear windows had been "jimmied" but instead of trying to raise the window from the bottom the attempt had been made to force it down from the top. The marks of the "jimmy" on the window casement could be plainly seen and the window had been lowered about 8 inches.

Posse on Trail of Brute

Wooster, O., May 21—A posse of 50 residents of Cresson gave up the search tonight for a man who last night entered the home of Lawrence D. Newberry, editor of the Cresson Journal, found Mrs. Newberry alone and beat her into unconsciousness when she refused to give him money.

Prisoners Escape From Workhouse

Canton, O., May 21—Through a hole less than a foot square that they dug through a wall 20 feet from the ground, three prisoners made their escape from the Stark County workhouse this afternoon. One, Harry Murphy, was captured. The two at large are Albert Umbacher of Canton and James Green of Alliance. A number of persons in the neighborhood saw them leap to freedom, but none attempted to interfere.

Newcomers Moose Lodge Instituted

A delegation of officers and the degree staff of the local Loyal Order of Moose went to Newcomerstown Wednesday night, where they assisted in the institution of a Moose lodge. J. W. Jones, deputy supreme organizer, had charge of the exercises while the degree team of the Coshocton lodge put on the work.

George H. Hamilton, supreme director of Newark, will meet with the new lodge next Thursday night and finish the work of establishing the new lodge, which starts off with a charter membership of over fifty.

Governor Cox Said to Favor Roosevelt Followers in Counties Where They Defeated Republicans

From Columbus comes the word that Governor Cox is preparing places for the Progressives at the political pie counter, which same will doubtless be discouraging news for the Republican organization of Coshocton county and other counties in which the Roosevelt forces polled a larger votes than the Taftites at last fall's election.

This means that in all probability the new liquor license commission for Coshocton county will be made up of a Democrat and Progressive instead of a Republican. It also means that any other plums that may be distributed to a minority party in Coshocton county will likely go to the Rooseveltites.

Confers With Governor

According to a dispatch from Columbus Wednesday, Chairman Walter F. Brown of the Progressive state organization, held an hour's conference with Governor Cox Tuesday night, at which time, it is said, the matter of allowing the Progressives a share of the minority party plums was discussed. There is no doubt that the governor will look with favor on the proposition, in view of the fact that it would be good politics to hand the Roosevelt followers a share of the appointments instead of throwing all the strength such plums afford to the Republicans alone. At the same time, it must not be overlooked that the Progressives have a better claim on the patronage in the counties where they ran second to the Wilsonites.

Chairman Welcker Talks
It is understood that the local Republicans have several candidates who are casting longing eyes toward the liquor license commission plum, without dreaming that the Progressives may have a voice in the selection. County Chairman Paul Welcker of the Progressives, in discussing the matter with a Tribune reporter Wednesday night, said, "Personally, the Progressive movement has always been a matter of principle with me and I never have been looking for political plums. However, I feel, of course, that Chairman Brown has taken the proper move for we are entitled to the appointments in Coshocton and all other counties where we whipped the Republicans last fall. At the same time, I do not overlook the fact that the appointments will give the Progressive party added strength in the various county organizations."

Defense Winner in Davis-Platt Case

In the case of Davis vs Platt, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant Wednesday night. The trial was started Wednesday morning and the jury after deliberating a half hour returned a verdict about 9 o'clock.

In the case, Samuel Davis, formerly a well known Plainfield merchant, sought to recover damages from the estate of J. H. Platt, deceased to the amount of $2,400 for the loss of services, nurse hire and doctor's bill occasioned by the injuries sustained by his wife, who was thrown from a buggy August 29, 1909, when a team belonging to Platt ran off.

The Third Trial

On account of the fact that the case was the third in which the same evidence was introduced, a large amount of interest was taken not only by residents of the Plainfield vicinity but all parts of the county.

The first case was under the title of Mrs. Samuel Davis vs J. H. Platt and the jury disagreed. The case was again tried and the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defense.

May Now Settle Estate

A. H. Hochman, of Plainfield, is administrator of the estate of J. H. Platt and on account of the litigation it has been impossible to settle the estate among the heirs.

Attorney F. E. Pomerene represented the defendant while W. S. Merrill acted as attorney for the plaintiff.

Septuagenarian Becomes Father of Bouncing Boy

Philadelphia, May 20.—A lusty 12-pound boy blessed the home of Leo Quadenfield, the 70-year-old contractor who was married last August to Marie Di Giacomo, a little 15-year-old Italian girl, who had been taken to raise by his first wife.

When they married last summer the neighbors mobbed the contractor's home. Quadenfield and his bride went on about their way, and when his children, by the first wife, found that the pair were living happily they began to soften.

Today the birth of baby was the signal for a reconciliation and, led by the daughter of his first marriage, the neighborhood held a celebration, and little Alexander Hamilton Quadenfield was the cause of the festivities. To night a lawn fete was held in the septuagenarian's honor, and the attending physician declares the child is as perfect a specimen of an infant that has ever been born.

There was a business session of the board of control of the Inter-Church Athletic association last evening at the Church of Christ following the mid-week service. Only routine business was transacted.

To Lecture at Taylor's Church

"Some Phases of Chinese Life and Religion" is the topic of a lecture to be given Friday evening, May 23 at Taylor's Methodist Episcopal church by the Rev. H. B. Worley of Fresno. The lecture will be an illustrated one. Chinese clothes, curios, furniture and kitchen utensils will be shown. Something that promises to be of particular interest is a tripod and spear used by the vegetarians in the famous massacre of English missionaries at Hua-sang in 1895. The program will close with a Chinese wedding party attired in Chinese costume. The lecture is given for the benefit of the boys' club of the church.

Grabs Rod on Car And Saves His Life

O. J. Lauer, Pennsy Brakeman, Has Miraculous Escape When Thrown From Car in Local Yards Last Night

After being knocked from the top of a box car directly beneath the wheels of the train, O. J. Lauer, 22, Pennsy brakeman of Dennison, miraculously escaped death by grabbing a rod under the car Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock in the local yards near the freight station. He was dragged for a considerable distance before his cries were heard and the train stopped. His left foot was broken and he was badly cut about the legs.

The victim was taken to the office of Dr. Carr where his injuries were dressed and later he was taken aboard a freight train to his home in Dennison.

Mrs. Royer Is Granted A Divorce

On the grounds of gross neglect and adultery, Nettie Royer was granted a divorce from Martin Royer by Judge Ashman in probate court Wednesday afternoon. The plaintiff, Mrs. Royer is given the custody of two minor children, Ernest and Margaret and the defendant is ordered to pay $10 per month toward their support and the costs of the case.

The plaintiff is also given alimony in the amount of $500.

Both parties are well known residents of Franklin township and the case was not contested by the defendant.

It will be recalled that Royer figured in a sensational disappearance several months ago.

VAIN WAIT FOR 'WEED'

Snowslide Peril Is Met in Quest of Tobacco.

Mining Camp's Supply Destroyed Through Accidental Explosion of Dynamite Close to Camp—Seven-Up Game Is Played.

Washington.—"Up in the mining regions of the San Juan mountains of Colorado," said Charles Cavender, an attorney of the mining camps of that state, now on a visit to the capital, "the snow is so deep and treacherous that from the first of October until the first of the following June a man takes his life in his hands when he attempts to travel up or down the declivities of the peaks or the steep slopes of the divides."

"Especially is this true in the late spring, when the warmth of midday has somewhat softened the great snow masses. In the summer of 1911 a force of several hundred men went up to the Sunnyside mine, perched high above timber line amid the eternal solitude of Sultana mountain. They carried with them everything necessary for their maintenance and comfort until the following July—including dynamite for the mine and tobacco, ample tobacco, for the men."

"Now, it happened in May that a box of dynamite which, through inadvertence, had been set out against the cache where they kept their package goods, blew up one night, and scattered condensed milk and canned beef and such pickled stuff all over the Utopian range. They didn't mind losing these necessities; they could do without them. But when the boys found that every crumb of tobacco in the camp had been blown over into New Mexico they began to look serious."

"The first day was bad enough, but when the second sun set upon that tobaccoless crowd they were in a nervous state that made them ready for anything. About ten o'clock that night the superintendent, who found himself too shaky to work or sleep, wandered over to the miners' bunkhouse and found Big Costigan, a County Carlew man, patting on his snowshoes."

"I bade him at seven-to say who should go below and get the 'baccy,' explained Madigan, day foreman, by way of explanation, as Costigan, having obtained a generous contribution from all hands, set out on his perilous journey, relying somewhat on the chill of the night to lessen the danger from snowslides."

"It was a gloomy lot that went down on the eight o'clock shift that morning. The day wore on, painfully, slowly, tobaccoless, but at sunset, as the superintendent stepped out of his office to soothe a system of badly jangled nerves with a whiff of fresh air, he spied Costigan stumbling over the crest of the divide a furious away; staggering, evidently overcome by the climb through the thin air of that high altitude."

"As they drew near, Costigan halted and stood, swaying, swinging his arms aimlessly in the air. A glance showed them two things: one that he didn't have an ounce of tobacco on him, the other that it was something stronger than rarefied air that made him reel in his tracks in that aimless manner. In short, Costigan was gloriously drunk!"

"Look here," rasped the superintendent, "where's that tobacco we've been dying for up here for three days?"

"Over the drunken face of Costigan there came a look of seamy, puzzled thought, which, a moment later, gave place to an expression of much-wronged virtue."

"'Baccy?' he exclaimed. 'Baccy? You—hic—you 'shpec' a man 't remember ever's B3 thinz?'"

SAYS CAPITAL IS HEARTLESS

Revolution Liable to Come Any Day, Hibernians Are Told by Dr. Kelly.

Sydney.—Dr. Kelly, the Roman Catholic intimate of Australia, addressing the Hibernian society here, referred to the recent strikes and the threats of strikes and said: "The contentions and strife between capital and labor may develop into a revolution any day, because capital is heartless and renders labor desperate, and because labor is emboldened by the success attending violence. Society with us is in a very perilous and dangerous condition."

Dr. Kelly added that a "man must not put his hand into another man's pocket unless he is starving and his tongue is hanging out with thirst. Then he may take from another man's pocket."

First Salmon Brings $32.

Bangor, Me.—That highly coveted prize of the Maine angler—the season's first Penobscot salmon—was taken at Bangor pool by Charles C. Bissell. The fish weighed 16 pounds and was sold for $32, the highest price per pound ever paid for a Penobscot salmon. It was sent to Mrs. W. Campbell Clark of New Jersey.

MICE CAUSE OF STAMPEDE

Strap Climbing Becomes Popular When Mischievous Boys Release Score of Rodents in Subway.

New York.—Subway travelers were treated to a new variety of excitement when some boys, more mischievous than chivalrous, released a score of mice which they carried in a box in a crowded Broadway express train.

Snaps hanging immediately became popular, particularly among the large number of women, who saved themselves by shinning, as in a gymnasium. With such feats and a near panic even among the men passengers, there was a wild stampede from the train as quick as the two-mile run to the next station could be covered. The innocent mice had been trampled to death and the mischievous boys had escaped.

Will Probe Mining Industry.

Washington, May 20.—The senate will conduct an investigation into the Paint Creek and Cabin Creek coal mining strikes in West Virginia. The investigation will be under the direction of a subcommittee of three senators, members of the committee on education and labor. It is known that Senator Borah will be the Republican member, and it is believed that the other two members will be Senators Swanson of Virginia and Shields of Tennessee. All are able lawyers. Senator Swanson will be chairman, probably.

Glass allowed his mouth to open in amazement. The day was replete with surprises.

"96!" he said, while the light of understanding came over him. "You're Cloudy-but-the-Sun-Shines?"

"Yes—Carlisle." Cloudy threw back his head, and pointed with dignity to the flag of his Alma Mater hanging upon the wall.

"By Jove, I remember that!" exclaimed Speed.

"So will Yale so long as she lives," cried the Indian, grimly. "You crippled me in the second half—he stripped his withered leg—he dropped it on you; and I have not forgotten." He ground the last sentence between his teeth.

"See here, Bo—Mr. Cloudy. You don't blame us for that?"

Cloudy grunted, and threw a yellow envelope on the floor at Speed's feet. "There is something for you," said he, while his lips curled. He turned, and limped silently to the door.

"And I tried to kid him!" breathed Glass with disgust, when the visitor had gone. "I can't been in right since Garfield was shot."

"It's a telegram from Covington!" cried Speed, tearing open the message. "At last!"

"Thank the Lord!" Glass started forward eagerly. "When'll he be here? Quick!" Then he paused. "J. Wallingford Speed had gone dead pale, and was reeling slightly. "What's wrong?"

The college man made uncertainly for his bed, murmuring incoherently: "I—I'm sick! I'm sick, Larry!" He fell limply at full length, and groaned, "Call the race off!"

Glass snatched the message from his employer's nerveless fingers, and read, with bulging eyes, as follows:

"J. Wallingford Speed, Flying Heart Ranch, Kidder, N. M."

"Don't tip off. Am in jail Omaha. Looks like ten days."

"CULVER COVINGTON."

The trainer uttered a cry like that of a wounded animal.

"Call it off, Larry," moaned the hope of the Flying Heart. "I've been poisoned!"

"Poisoned, eh?" said the fat man, tremulously. "Poisoned! Nix! Not with me!" He walked firmly across the room, flung back the lid of Speed's athletic trunk, and began to paw through it feverishly. One after another he selected three heavy sweaters, then laid strong hands upon his protegee and jerked him to his feet. "Sick, eh? Here, get into these!"

"What do you mean, Lawrence?" inquired his victim.

"If you get sick, I die," Glass opened the first sweater, and half-smothered his protegee with it. "Hurry up! You're going into training!"

CHAPTER XI.

HAT was a terrible hour for J. Wallingford Speed. As for Larry, once he had grasped the full significance of the telegram, he became a different person. Some fierce electric charge wrought a chemical alteration in his every fiber; he became a domineering, iron-willed autocrat, obsessed by the idea of his own preservation, and not hesitating to use physical force when force became necessary to lessen his peril.

Repeatedly Speed folded his arms over his stomach, rocked in the throes of anguish, and waited that he was perishing with cramps; the trainer only snorted with derision. When he refused to don the clothes selected for him, Glass fell upon him like a raging grizzly.

"You won't, eh? We'll see!"

Then Speed took refuge in anger, but the other cried:

"Never mind the hysterics, Bo. You're going to run off some blabber to-day."

"But I have to go riding!"

"Not a chance!"

"I tell you I'll run when I come back," maintained the youth, almost tearfully beseeching. "They're waiting for me."

"Let 'em gallop—they can run along-side."

"With all these sweaters? I'd have a sunstroke."

"It's the best thing for you. I never thought of that."

As Glass forced his protegee toward the house, the other going people appeared clad for their excursion; their horses were tethered to the porch. And it was an ideal day for a ride—warm, bright, and inviting.

"We are ready!" called Jean gayly.

"What in the world—" Helen arose at sight of the swathed figure. "Are you cold, Mr. Speed?"

"Climb on your horse and get a start," panted the brawny trainer; "he's going to race you ten miles."

"I'm going to do nothing of the sort. I'm going to—"

But Glass jerked him violently, crying:

"And no talkin' to gals, neither. You're trainin'. Now, get a move!"

"D' You Know Who That Is?"

and sank into a chair. A moment later he appeared with two bottles of beer, one glued to his lips. Both were evidently ice cold, judging from the fog that covered them.

"Speed rose with a cry.

"Geel! That looks good!"

But the other, thrusting him aside without removing the neck of the bottle from his lips, gurgled:

"No booze, Wally! You're trainin'!"

"But I'm thirsty!" shouted the athlete, laying hands upon the full bottle, and trying to wrench it free.

"Have a little sense. If you're thirsty hit the sink." Glass still maintained his hold, mumbling indistinctly: "Water's the worst thing in the world. Wait! I'll get you some."

He stepped into the bunk-room, to return an instant later with a cup half full. "Rinse out your mouth, and don't swallow it all."

"All! There isn't that much. Ugh! It's lukewarm. I want a bucket of ice-water—ice-water!"

"Nothing doing! I won't stand to have your epistaxis chilled."

"My what?"

"Never mind now. Off with them clothes, and get under that shower. I guess I'll feel pretty good to-day."

Speed obeyed instructions sullenly, while his trainer, reclining in the cosy-corner, uncorked the second bottle. From behind the blanket curtains where the barrel stood, the former demanded:

"What did you mean by saying I'd have to run again this afternoon?"

"Stars!" said Glass, shortly.

"Stars?"

"Fast work. We been loading so far you got to get some ginger."

"Rars! What's the use?"

"No use at all. You couldn't out-run a steam-roller, but if you won't duck out, I've got to do my best. I'd as lief die of a gunshot-wound as starve to death in the desert."

"Do you suppose we could run away?"

"Could we!" Glass propped himself eagerly upon one elbow. "Leave it to me."

"No!" Wally resumed rubbing himself down. "I can't leave without looking like a quitter. Fresno would get her sure."

"What's the difference if you're a straddle of a cloud with a gold guitar in your lap?"

"Oh, they won't kill us."

"I tell you these cow-boys are desperate. If you stay here and run that race next Saturday, she'll uptoe up on Sunday and put a rose in your hand, and I can see her now, all in black. Take it from me, Wally, we ain't goin' to have no luck in this thing."

"My dear fellow, the simplest way out of the difficulty is for me to injure myself."

"Here!" Glass hopped to his feet and dove through the blankets. "None of that! Have a little regard for me. If you go lame it's my curtain."

All that day the trainer stayed close to his charge, never allowing him out of his sight, and when, late in the afternoon, Speed rebelled at the espionage, Glass merely shrugged his fat shoulders.

"But I want to be alone—with her. Can't you see?"

"I can, but I won't. Go as far as you like. I'll close my eyes."

"Or I'll close them for you!" The lad scowled; his companion laughed mirthlessly.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHIP

The men who would profit financially by war are the men who are clamoring for war. The Krupps, the great cannon makers of Germany, are accused, and the proof seems not to be wanting, of subsidizing French newspapers to carry war scares in their columns in order that the Krupps and their friends might the more easily frighten the German reichstag into voting larger appropriations for military purposes.

The same thing is going on in this country right now. All this talk of war with Japan originates in the minds of the heads of the powder trust, the armor plate trust, the steel trust, the battleship builders, the torpedo makers and all the other private interests that would profit by the sale of their wares to the government, and, incidentally, by the murder of their fellowmen.

There is the bottom of all this war talk. It begins and ends with the desire for profits. It is born in greed and nurtured in avarice. And men may be drafted and shoved to the front and mercilessly slaughtered by their fellowmen all to satisfy the inordinate desire of a few special interests for more money. The greed of men is a terrible thing to contemplate. But equally as blameworthy as the greed of the few is the indifference and apathy of the many to their own best interests.

But the other spirit is growing. The people are smarter than they used to be. They are doing what the privileged few have done all along—they are beginning to look out for No. 1. Men are grasping the tremendous commercial and ethical value of worldwide peace and they are talking peace as it was never talked before. In a recent address at a peace breakfast in Washington Secretary of State Bryan said:

I ask you to join me in proposing a toast to a ship, more potent than any which man has thus far employed in war—a ship with whose coming man's highest hopes will be realized, for there is nothing beyond.

Here's to the greatest of ships. Its compass is the human heart. Its shells are bursting with good will. Love is the smokeless powder that impels the projectiles which it sends forth. The Prince of Peace is its captain. I propose as the consummation of our desire the enduring, the indestructible battleship, whose armor plating our peace—FRIENDSHIP.

IMPROVING THE PARCEL POST

Representative H. J. Lewis of Maryland, author of the present parcel post law, has suggested changes for its improvement. It is scarcely likely that his suggestions will meet the approval of the express companies.

Several years ago when he first made a study of the question of transportation of parcels by the government, he proposed that the government buy the express companies and operate them. RECENTLY MR. LEWIS HAS SEEN A NEW LIGHT.

He has acquainted himself with the enormous amount of watered stock that has been injected into these companies and the fictitious value the government would have to pay for them in order to become the owner of these companies as they now exist.

But he has seen his parcel post system at work. He was not altogether satisfied with its own law when it was submitted to congress. That body modified it still further in a way that was not at all to his liking. But with all its imperfections THE PARCEL POST LAW HAS WORKED. THE PARCEL POST IS A SUCCESS.

So, without any more of a general's expenditure, Representative Lewis realizes that government transportation possesses the elements of success and is eager to take to the extent that it does not go far enough. He is now coming with it to Senator General Barbour as to the next step in government transportation with safety.

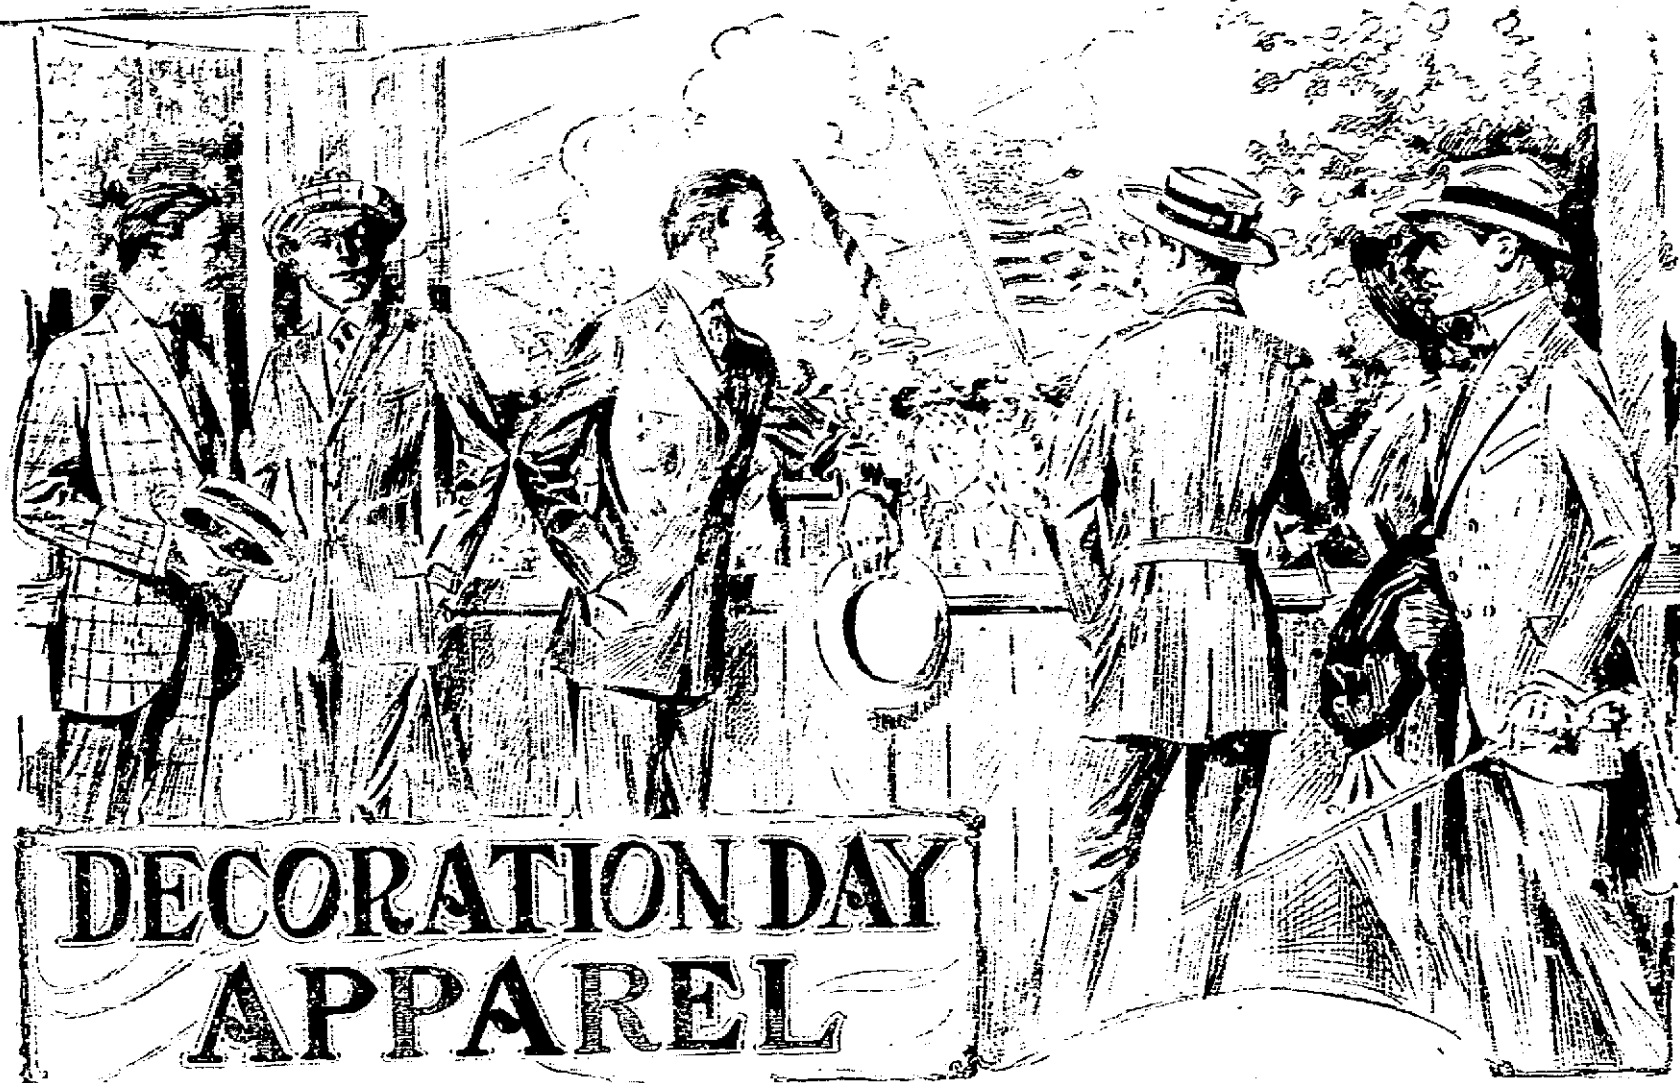

LEWIS NO LONGER PROMISES TO BUY THE EXPRESS COMPANIES. HE ADVOCATES DIRECT GOVERNMENTAL COMPETITION WITH THE EXPRESS COMPANIES AND IS READY TO SUBMIT FIGURES TO CONGRESS SHOWING WHERE THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT CAN CONDUCT THE EXPRESS BUSINESS OF THIS COUNTRY AT A PROFIT AND FOR ALMOST ONE-HALF THE EXISTING EXPRESS RATES.

Lewis's idea is to broaden the parcel post into a genuine express service. Under the present system of comparatively high rates and complicated zones it is not economical to buy produce

FEAR VILLAGE IS DOOMED

Swiss Town Is in Danger of Being Covered by Millions of Tons of Rock From Mountain.

Geneva, Switzerland.—The downward sliding movement of the top of Mount Carline, which threatened to overwhelm the village of Fleurier a couple of weeks ago, has stopped, but the people in the valley live in hourly anxiety that the millions of tons of rock and earth above them will fall upon the town.

The authorities have ordered the inhabitants of the danger zone to move temporarily. Watchers have been posted on neighboring peaks connected by improvised telephone lines, with sentinels below, to signal at any moment, day or night, the recurrence of the movement.

Deep trenches are being dug at the base of the mountain in the hope of arresting the landslide, if it comes, or at least check it for a few moments.

Her Titles Are Tangled.

Ogden, Utah.—Mrs. Maria C. Van Burenson Vallinga married James Vallinga, a son of her divorced husband here, and thereby became the daughter-in-law of her former husband. The rearrangement of relationships was further complicated in the discovery that Mrs. Vallinga instead of being stepmother, becomes a sister-in-law to her stepchildren, and Vallinga becomes stepfather to his stepbrothers and sisters. Mrs. Vallinga is her stepmother-in-law. Vallinga is twenty-one years old and his wife is thirty-eight.

in the country and have it sent in by parcel post. The weight limit is too small, and the rates are too high.

Mr. Lewis would increase the weight limit of packages to be mailed and delivered from eleven to one hundred pounds and would set no limit on packages that are shipped by the sender and called for by the receiver at the post office or distributing point. HE FINDS THAT THE TARIFFS CAN BE CUT TO ONE-HALF THEIR PRESENT FIGURE AND IN SOME INSTANCES TO LESS. His plan is to make the parcel post system to be an actual distributor of produce grown within one hundred or two hundred miles of each city.

If the parcel post can be so developed it will be a tremendous factor in that somewhat illusory get-together movement indulged in periodically by producer and consumer.

They had a municipal parade in New York the other day and included in it a lot of animals from the Central Park menagerie. But would not recall reading where the biggest and fiercest animal in the metropolis—the Tammany Tiger—and any part in the parade.

Just about the time the average American is convinced that England is partly right in her Panama canal contentions a bunch of jabbering English sparrows awake him two mornings in succession and he longs for a chance at the railroads.

Water from the Pacific side has been turned into the Panama canal. It's a pity they couldn't have had the Muskingum river down there for about a week in March and it would have bored a hole clear through the blasted Isthmus.

It is at this time of year when the ground begins to warm up and the fishing gets really good that newspaper editors begin to think that perhaps the country is sufficiently saved for them to take a couple of days off.

Even if these nights do not resemble the good old summer time they contribute a whole lot to sound sleep and keeping down fly pests in the early morning hours.

Kidneys Seldom

Free from Poison

CLEAN THEM OUT AND BACKACHE

SIDACHE AND BLADDER TROUBLES GO

It's mighty close to the truth to say that there are ten thousand apparently healthy people in America to-day, who will have Bright's disease, dropsy or some form of kidney disease within two months.

If you have backache, or the slightest suggestion of backache, don't take chances. Get a 50 cent bottle of Thompson's Barosma to-day and give your kidneys a thorough cleansing. They probably need it. If they don't, Thompson's Barosma is a good tonic anyway and will do you good.

Thompson's Barosma is guaranteed by Page & Lorenz to cure kidney or bladder disease, no matter how distressing, or money back. Put up in liquid form, is quickly assimilated and goes directly to the seat of trouble. The very first dose will make your sick kidneys feel better, but bear this in mind when constipation is present, Thompson's Dandelion and Mandrake Pills should also be used. 25c.

Memorial Sermon

Rev. Norris will have charge of the memorial services in the Keene M. E. church next Sunday evening commencing at eight o'clock (sun time). Special music is being arranged for.

Visiting Brother

Mrs. William Wisely of Cleveland who has been visiting her mother Mrs. Berry on South Third street left Wednesday for New Castle where she will visit for a few days with her brother Ralph Berry.

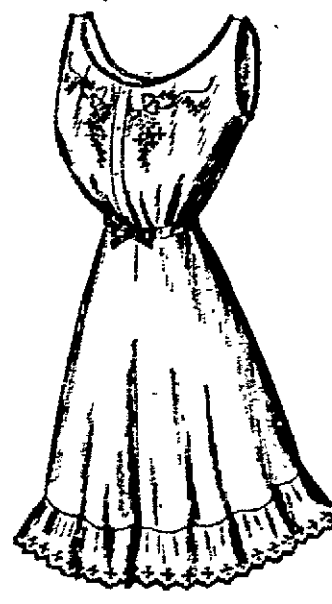

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription, can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D.D.D. Prescription.

Drop into our store today and let us tell you how we back our opinion with a money-back guarantee. Ask us also about D.D.D. Soap; it helps.

PRETTY COMBINATION.

For a combination of corset cover with drawers or short petticoat we have a simple design. For the corset cover there is a Louis Quinze bow, divided in the center so that one half of it comes on each side of the front. With this is blended a bunch of blossoms of no particular kind, which form the more solid portion of the design. For the drawers there is an edge of deep scallops in three parts, with a broken flower above them. This edge can be used on a short petticoat as well as on the drawers if desired.

Of course, this design may be used for other purposes than a combination that launders. This season we see a great deal of fine Italian silk and of crepe de Chine used for underwear, and this same design will answer for these as well as for cambric.

The above pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

PASSING OF OLD SALESMEN

Swaggering Joke Teller Has Been Replaced by Modern Clean-Cut, Business-Like Gentleman.

Gone forever is the swaggering, joke telling salesman—he with the whisky breath and the cigarette-stained fingers. His place has been taken by the clean-cut, business-like gentleman, who makes his sales, not by treating, joking and story telling, but by salesmanship, or brains intelligently applied. The change is, of course, a credit to the craft, due to the inroads of advanced education.

The former type in truth, did not drink because they liked it, but because it was a tool of the trade. Some drunk, it is true, like the Chinaman, who exclaimed, after he bought a quart of fiery, execrable, cheap whisky: "Me no drinkee for drinkee; me drinkee for drunkee." Most salesmen did not drink for pleasure; they drank for business, but "the world do move." Civilization has caused this class to be tabooed in all good business circles, and the man who dissipates soon finds himself on the scrap heap of men. To-day few men even who sell whisky, drink. This proves conclusively it need not be a drinker to sell the goods, but a thinker.—Mail Order Journal.

CONTROL OF LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Col. Maus Gives His Views on Right to Regulate or Prohibit Sale of Alcoholic Beverages.

Col. L. Mervin Maus of the U. S. army medical corps before the National Association of Military Surgeons, said:

Governments, states, counties and municipalities have a legal right to regulate or prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages just the same as they have the right to prohibit the community against malignant diseases of pernicious narcotic habits. Everywhere the liquor traffic is subject to control and the legitimacy of such laws have been sustained by the highest courts.

Only recently the war department has issued an order depriving officers and enlisted men of pay while on sick report or unable to perform duty as a result of diseases and conditions contracted through drinking or other vicious practices.

BREWERS FACING HARD TIMES

Nothing Optimistic in Address of President Schaefer at Recent New York Convention.

For many years, in their national and state conventions, brewers have always opened their proceedings with congratulatory announcements of the satisfactory increase in their trade. But there was nothing especially optimistic in the address of the president of the New York State Brewers' association, delivered at its last annual convention in New York City. Its somewhat dolorous reference to the fact that the liquor interests were not dealing with a theory, but with a real condition, namely, that 32,000,000 people in this enlightened country have prohibited locally or otherwise the traffic in alcoholic beverages, indicated quite the contrary. The New York Times calls attention to the fact that President Schaefer did not for a moment indulge in the familiar assertions as to the inefficacy of prohibition, but instead exhorted his hearers to fight both its maintenance and its extension by the use of only one argument—an appeal to the material interests of the producers and manufacturers who sell what they raise or make to breweries and saloons.

Teaching Bears Good Fruit.

In one of Edinburgh's largest schools in the poorest district, there was scarcely a child but had had his or her life spoiled by drink in the home. Asked what they were going to be when they grew up, the class shouted "Teetotallers."

What would they do with the public houses? "Shut them all up," was the almost fierce response. What other shops would open if they shut the public houses? "The clothes shop" and "the boot shop" were the first mentioned.

What other shops would close if the public houses were shut? "The pawnshop."

"Alma Mater."

There is a saloon in Chicago that does business under this sign: "Alma Mater." As alma mater refers to the institution where one has received his education, it is probable that many human wrecks about town can look to that sign and truthfully say "Alma Mater."

NAMES ATTEAUX IN CONSPIRACY

Undertaker Testifies in Dynamite "Planting" Case.

Boston, May 21.—In an endeavor to connect President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company and Frederick E. Atteaux with the alleged conspiracy to discredit striking textile workers at Lawrence by "planting" dynamite in buildings occupied by strikers in that city in January, 1912, the prosecution called John I. Brown, a Lawrence undertaker, to the witness stand.

Brown, who was a member of the Lawrence school committee when the dynamite was found, was fined $500 in the Essex county court several months ago upon conviction of unlawfully hiding the explosive.

The first testimony connecting either of the defendants with the dynamite was given by Mr. Brown when he took the stand. He testified bluntly that Atteaux had asked him if he could obtain some dynamite. Brown said that he knew both Collins and Atteaux.

"I saw Atteaux on Jan. 15," said Brown. "I said, 'If I was holding those fellows (textile strikers) I'd fight them by their own methods.'"

"What do you mean?" he said, "dynamite." "Dynamite or anything else," I said.

"Could you get some dynamite?" said he. I said "No." Then he suggested that perhaps Mr. Pittman might get some.

The Pittman mentioned by the witness was Ernest R. Pittman, who, when the state alleges Wood, Atteaux and Collins conspired, Pittman committed suicide on the day he was subpoenaed to appear as a witness before the grand jury, which was investigating the alleged dynamite plot.

"Atteaux telephoned to Pittman," Brown continued, "and an hour later Pittman arrived at Atteaux's office."

Atteaux said, "Excuse me, John," and he took Pittman into the corridor. Pittman returned in about three minutes and said to me, "Do you think you can do this business?" and I said, "Yes, sir." I am not sure that Atteaux was present at the time Pittman said to me, "I'll get some."

"Atteaux came in after Pittman left and said to me, 'Well, you can't do this for nothing.' I said, 'No, I will have to hire someone to help me.'"

"How much do you need?" he asked. "Will $500 be enough?" I told him that would be enough.

"Atteaux then asked me about the police and I told him that Inspector Rooney was a friend of mine and would never suspect me when I gave him the tip about the dynamite. Atteaux said he had no money with him, but would give it to me at 5 o'clock."

TO HAVE ATHLETICS

Olympic Games Cause France to Take Up Sports.

Owing to Generosity of Marquis the First French Athletic College is Being Built—Will Soon Admit Students.

Paris, France.—France has decided to take up athletics seriously. Heretofore in France athletes have had no public sentiment behind them and no public support financially. There has been lacking the incentive of applause to arouse enthusiasm, and what few men have gone in for sport have done so from pure love of it—and they have been very few.

But after the Olympic games at Stockholm the French public woke up to the fact that their country was making a pitiful showing.

When an obscure province like Finland starts the world by the prowess of its athletes, when far-off Japan and Chile send men to these games and France has but two representatives, and one of these is a girl tennis player—it seems time that something is done.

Hence there was created the idea of a "college of athletics." A committee was formed last October which issued a circular to the public.

The object first in mind was to take charge of what athletic material there was already and train it for entrance in the Olympic games at Berlin in 1916, to try to gain some athletic honors there if possible.

But it was seen at once that this would be only a beginning. If France was to take its proper position in the athletic world there was need of much more than this. The idea was extended to creating at the proposed college of athletes a school also for athletic instructors, at the same time conducting a campaign of publicity that would interest the youth of the nation and would lead in time to the establishment of similar training colleges all over the country.

The October circular was signed by Auguste Rodin, Jean Richepin, Dr. Weiss, Gabriel Bonvallet, the Marquis de Polignac, Dr. Bouchard and Maurice Colrat.

In reality it was the marquis de Polignac who has brought to success this movement. He foresaw that to arouse the interest of a whole nation would be the labor of years unless some tangible showing was made at once. It is to his generosity that the first French athletic college is a reality and will be ready to receive students soon.

He had already laid out an athletic field at Reims. Here he has built a handsome gymnasium, with a swimming pool alongside. In front is a stadium, with a running track around the sides and a straightaway for dashes down the center 110 meters (about 120 yards) long. Within the stadium are plots for all the field events and in one corner of the grounds is room for trap shooting.

In charge he has placed Lieutenant Georges Robert, the inventor of the system of setting-up exercises now in use in the navy.

The work of the college is divided into three parts. First, the study of all questions concerning physical education; second, a course for educators, instructors and trainers; third, the care and training of athletes for international contests, in which France is now resolved to make a creditable showing.

IS FATHER OF FIFTY CHILDREN

Thomas Ellison of Arkansas Said to Be Leading "Daddy" of America.

Walnut, Ark.—In Thomas Ellison, better known as "Uncle Tom," who resides in Newton county, it is believed the real champion of the procreation principles of Theodore Roosevelt has been found. "Uncle Tom" is ninety-three years old. The birth recently of a son to one of his grand daughters cause a recasting of Ellison's record. Here it is:

Married three times.
Father of 50 children.
Grandfather of 60.
Great-grandfather of 27.
His youngest child is eleven years old, the oldest sixty-five. Ellison was born in Clinton county, Ohio.

FED RABBIT WITH A FILLER

Schoolboy Successfully Raises Young Hare He Found in Nest.

London.—A baby rabbit, the property of a Horley schoolboy, has been successfully reared with a fountain pen filler as a feeding bottle. Jack St. John Smith, aged thirteen, was walking in the grounds of the Burtons preparatory school, near Horley, when he saw a rabbit run down a hole. With a schoolboy's curiosity, he dug around the hole, and two feet below the surface found a nest of four. Lying in the nest was a two-day-old rabbit, no bigger than a full-sized mouse. There was very little fur on its body, and its eyes were closed.

Wrapping it in his handkerchief, Master Jack put it in his pocket and cycled home. The rabbit was housed in a chocolate box, but the problem then arose—how was it to be fed? It was too young to lick or chew anything. Suddenly Jack had his brilliant idea—why not give it milk with a fountain-pen filler?

A filler was obtained and a drop of milk squeezed into the rabbit's mouth. It was almost a case of forcible feeding at first, for when the bulb was squeezed Pincher, as the rabbit was named, had to swallow the milk.

After a time, however, Pincher opened its mouth eagerly when it felt the first drop of milk and sucked away at the filler. During the first critical days Pincher emptied a filler of milk three times every two hours. Once Pincher was found nearly dead from cold outside its box at midnight, and once when placed on a thick rug it suddenly stood on its head and burrowed under the rug. It was extricated with difficulty.

A few days ago Pincher opened its eyes for the first time and ate its first meal of bread and milk.

HUSBANDS LEARN TO SEW

Pennsylvania Men Are Training for the Time When Their Wives Will Be Voters.

Picture Rocks, Pa.—Asserting they were fearful lest the ballot be granted to women and the husbands will have to do house work, the able bodied men of this place have formed an organization known as the "Men's Sewing Society."

At their last meeting they brought sewing bags and their wives' stockings to mend, and began the task of mending the stockings in order to ascertain if darning was as hard as they had always been led to believe.

The Rev. I. N. Earle, pastor of the Methodist church, who has been elected chairman of the society, presided, and some of the work that the men performed is depicted by their wives to have been far better than they could have imagined.

The men prepared a supper without women's aid, when they say they ate with relish, and were at home before 10 o'clock. The society will meet once a week.

ADMITS KILLING MAN FOR MONEY

West Virginian Weakens When Grilled by Columbus Police.

Columbus, O., May 21.—"I killed Samuel E. Kelly, cutting him with his own knife and shooting him with his own revolver. I took from him $47. It happened at 10:30 on the night of May 7, but a short time after we got into Columbus from Huntington."

This confession was made to Sergeant of Detectives Dorgan and Detective Rourke by Leslie Humphrey, who was brought back to Columbus from Gassaway, W. Va. It followed a "third degree" administered after the police showed Humphrey Kelly's watch taken from a sink in the rear of the house formerly occupied by Humphrey, near Twentieth and Bennett streets.

Mrs. Humphrey had told the police her husband said he threw a revolver into the sink, and the police had the place cleaned out in an effort to get the weapon. Instead they found Kelly's watch and identified it by numbers given them by the West Virginian Jeweler from whom the watch was purchased.

The police got on the trail of Humphrey through the man's own son. The child picked up a bloody revolver he found about the premises and a neighbor saw it. He told Officer Ball, who reported to Sergeant Dorgan, and so the chain was established which ended with Humphrey's arrest in West Virginia.

Robbery was the motive and nothing else, the police think. Humphrey had been working as a Norfolk & Western brakeman. He has a wife and two children now living in this city.

J. J. Sherman, the gardener who "saw" the murder of Kelly at 1 o'clock the next morning, and whose statement led to a long search for robbers supposed to have killed Kelly, the police say, is a prize dreamer.

Kelly and Humphrey originally knew each other when both were working at the Piney Ridge mine, owned by Colonel James Sturritt, at Stanard, W. Va. Three years ago Humphrey moved with his family to Akron. He met a man there and was sent to the penitentiary. When he got out he remained in Columbus with his family.

On the same day that Samuel Kelly sold a piece of property and started from Huntington, Humphrey started from Columbus to go to Huntington to see a sick sister. They met on the street in Huntington on May 6 and the rest of the day they were together with Humphrey's people. That night they were together and Humphrey found out about Kelly having the money.

Kelly told his mine boss when he quit and went to Huntington, that he expected to get a place with the Huntington streetcar company. The supposition is Humphrey told him he could get him work in Columbus if he would go there with him.

The two men started on the morning of May 7, according to Humphrey's confession, and it was after dark when they got to Columbus. Instead of taking a streetcar to the northeastern part of the city, where Humphrey lived, they walked east from the Union station and went out the tracks. They reached Fifth avenue and walking east, near Joyce avenue, the murder occurred.

ROYAL GUESTS ARRIVE.

King and Queen of England Welcomed by German Populace.

Berlin, May 21.—King George and Queen Mary of England arrived here to attend the marriage of Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of the Kaiser, on Saturday. They were the first members of royalty to arrive here for the wedding.

Emperor William, the empress and a number of German princes and princesses were at the railway station to welcome the British king and queen. Troops were provided for a bodyguard and the streets were lined with scores of detectives, government agents and policemen.

A cordial greeting was given King George and Queen Mary by the Germans who gathered along the route from the railway station to the party's destination.

WILSON CENSORS SPEECH.

Advises Sisson to Cut Out Talk of War With Japan.

Washington, May 21.—President Wilson disregarded all precedent again today in exercising what amounted to a censorship over speech-making in congress, which might complicate the situation growing out of Japan's protest against the California anti-Japan law.

Learning that Representative Sisson of Mississippi intended again to discuss the Japanese situation, and because in mind the Mississippi's in flamboyant language several weeks ago on the subject, Wilson sent for the congressman and asked him to detail what he proposed to say. He was requested to eliminate any portion of his speech which might tend to inflame or arouse any feeling in Japan.

ERRING SPOUSE BACK

Runaway Husband Is Pursued by New Jersey Minister.

Eloped With Pastor's Daughter and Is Captured at Newark—Wife Forgives Him but Boss Doesn't See It That Way.

Pedricktown, N. J.—William S. Murphy, the young bank cashier who left his wife and disappeared at the same time that Miss Polly Archer, a nineteen-year-old schoolteacher and minister's daughter, departed from town, has returned.

His wife, who had located him in the northern part of New York state after a long search, met him at Newark and took him to their home, where they told their friends that he had been forgiven and was going to start life over again.

Miss Archer didn't come back. After she vanished two months ago, her father, Rev. George D. Archer of the Methodist Episcopal church, requested a transfer, and was sent to Crozierville, Pa. It is said that Miss Polly has joined him there.

Nether Murphy nor his wife would give any of the details of how he was found or how the reconciliation was brought about, but it was learned that the minister had a good deal to do with the finding of his daughter and the young cashier.

They both dropped out of sight on the same afternoon. Mrs. Murphy had an appointment to go to a theater in Philadelphia with her husband and was to meet him at the ferry house in Philadelphia. After waiting a couple of hours she returned home to find that Miss Archer was missing, too.

The cashier and the school-teacher had been seen together about Pedricktown and the neighboring villages. Mrs. Murphy, with an uncle, broke open a trunk of her husband's and found in it a lot of love letters which the minister's daughter had written to him. The subject of divorce was mentioned in each.

There was no trace of the whereabouts of either and it wasn't known positively whether or not they were together. Mr. Archer enlisted the aid of his friend, Rev. Dr. George P. Dougherty of Newark, and in some way the latter learned that Murphy had been seen in Rochester.

Then, about ten days ago, Mr. Archer received a long, pathetic letter from Polly begging forgiveness and asking his permission to come home. He consented to take her back and Murphy and the girl were met in New York by Doctor Dougherty and her father. He presumably escorted Polly to his new home in Crozierville, while his fellow-clergyman took charge of Murphy and conducted him over to Newark, where the runaway husband was quartered in the Y. M. C. A. building.

Murphy, it is said, made a clean breast of the whole affair and asked Doctor Dougherty to try to arrange matters so that his wife would forgive him and take him back to their home. The Newark minister did this and Mrs. Murphy said she would give her husband another chance.

The young man is out of a job. The bank officials filed his place soon after he dropped out of sight, and they say they do not want him back.

WEIRD ARE IDEAS REVEALED

Joseph M. Wade Is Dead, Once Believed He Was Spiritual Husband of Mme. Blavatsky.

Boston.—Joseph M. Wade, a wealthy resident of Dorchester, who had been decorated by the mikado in recognition of his charities to widows and orphans of Japan, died in the belief that he was the spiritual husband of Madame Blavatsky, the theosophical leader, according to the story revealed in a master's report filed in the superior court.

The report was upon the suit of Herbert W. Burke, executor of Wade's estate, against Yamanaka & Co., dealers in Japanese curios, to compel them to restore to the estate a bill of sale of a collection of Japanese and oriental articles valued at between $15,000 and $20,000. Burke alleged that Wade was induced to affix his "mark" to the bill when he was too feeble to understand his acts. His contention was sustained by the court.

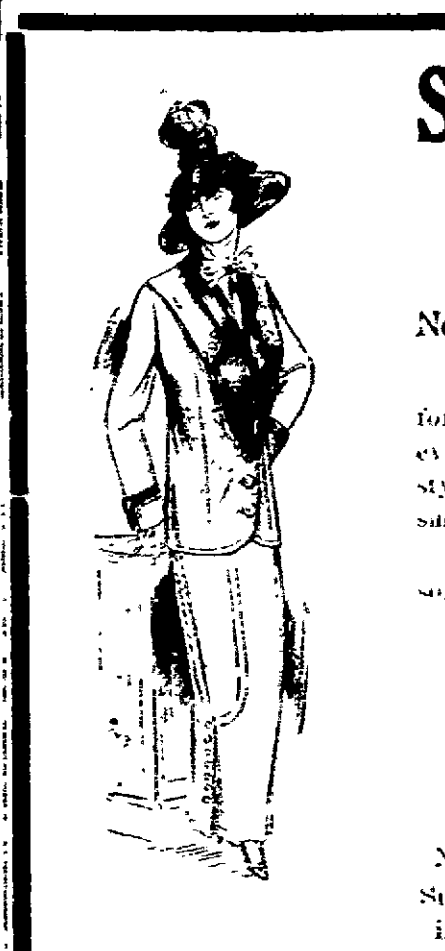

Wade, according to the master's report, had a "council room" filled with Japanese artifacts, where he went to commune with spirits. From the "other world" he gained the belief that he was to begin to get better or grow rapidly worse by December 15, 1904. When that day passed without noticeable improvement in health the report states Wade shut himself up in his room and died seven weeks later.

It was when Wade was shut up in this room, the report alleged, that the bill was signed.

Wants National Anthem Adopted.

Washington.—A joint resolution to make the "Star Spangled Banner" the official anthem of the United States has been introduced in congress by Representative Levy of New York. It provides that whenever the "Star Spangled Banner" is played on any occasion at any public place where persons belonging to any branch of the government service are present they will stand at attention, and all other persons will stand, such positions being maintained until the last note of the anthem.

Story of Burke and Wills' Fatal Exploring Expedition Recalled.

Disaster Caused by Bad Luck Due to Incompetence—Seven Members of Party Who Attempted to Cross Australia Succumb.

Sydney, N. S. W.—One of the saddest stories in connection with the exploration of Australia is that of Burke and Wills, whose monument forms one of the principal sights in Melbourne, a lofty pillar of stones in the Royal park, showing the precise spot whence the ill-fated explorers, accompanied by a party of thirteen others, including two German scientists, together with two years' supplies carried by camels, started in 1860 to cross Australia from south to north. Stuart had made an unsuccessful attempt fifteen years previously at a cost of £4,000 ($20,000) to perform a similar feat, and Stuart had made two failures, although by a singular coincidence he ultimately succeeded in the attempt. The overland telegraph posts still in use mark the course which he took and he was borne through the streets of Adelaide in triumph, though a physical wreck, on the very day that the bodies of Burke and Wills arrived on their way to their last resting place in Melbourne.

The story, which is graphically told in life, is one of remarkable enterprise, equipped regardless of expense, utterly ruined by incompetence and bad luck, the one, indeed, being the cause of the other. Burke, who had been a captain in the Australian army and subsequently inspector of police at Melbourne, knew nothing of the Australian bush, was "haphazard" in his methods, kept no journal of his own on the expedition, and according to one who knew him well, "used to alter his mind so often that it was not possible at times to understand what he really did mean."

Landells, who was originally second in command, left the expedition at an early stage, and predicted certain disaster at Cooper's creek. At Menindie, on the Darling, Burke and Wills, the survivors, with six others pushed forward to Cooper's creek, leaving Wright to follow with the bulk of the supplies "at the earliest moment."

From Cooper's creek Burke again pushed toward Wills, King and Gray, half a dozen camels and an altogether inadequate equipment of stores, and made a dash for the sea, leaving Burke with three men and ample supplies, verbally instructing him to follow on Burke's tracks when Wright arrived.

Burke managed to reach the Flinders, which had a tidal motion, showing that the sea was not far off, but as the little party had nearly exhausted their provisions, they determined to return to the camp at Cooper's creek. On the way they lost one of the men from starvation, the single day's delay caused by burying their comrade being responsible for the death of both.

Various expeditions were organized from Melbourne to find the missing men, one of which discovered King, a wasted figure, "covered with some scarred rags and part of a hat," who showed them the place where Burke and Wills had died. It is a curious fact that, whereas Burke's last orders to Burke were that he should shoot the blacks down at once if they gave any trouble, they were almost the only ones who shed tears over his grave, and it was through their unflinching kindness that King's life was saved.

Altogether seven members of the expedition perished, while the sum actually spent on it amounted to £27,000 ($225,000), by far the largest sum, we are told, that was ever spent in Australian history on a single exploring expedition. And yet, by a strange irony, though the weather conditions were perfect, food abundant, stores ample, and there was every reason to expect that the expedition would be attended by greater results, it was a failure from beginning to end, from sheer lack of those qualities which, though all else may be provided, are in the long run indispensable to success.

A speech by Mrs. J. S. Elliott on "Our Hostesses" completed the evening's enjoyment.

Graduating Class Entertained

The members of the graduating class of the Canal Lewisville high school were royally entertained with an evening party Wednesday at the home of Miss Eloise Best, a member of the class. Games of all sorts and music was the feature of the evening's entertainment and at a late hour a delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

Party at Miller Home

Miss Helen Miller and Miss Hazel McBride complimented Miss Jennie Roberts and Miss Helen Scherrer who are soon to leave for Columbus where they expect to take a business course, with a pretty evening party Wednesday at the home of the former on Elm street. The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the decorations and in the two course lunch that was served from the dining room table which was beautifully decorated in pink and white streamers caught from the chandelier to the corner and an immense bouquet of pink and white carnations forming the central design. As most of the guests were telephone girls a small telephone fastened on top of the chandelier caused a great deal of amusement. Dainty place cards with clever verses on them assisted the following in finding their places: Miss Helena Wertz, Miss Edie Ozle, Miss Minnie Watson, Miss Gertrude Farnier, Miss Nellie Fisher, Miss Nora Wiglins, Miss Eloise Andrews, Miss Bernice Scherrer, Miss Emma Purdy, Miss Kathleen Welsh, Miss Edith Peablies, Miss Clara Athey, Miss Jennie and Hazel McBride, Miss Mary Miller, Miss Jennie Roberts and Miss Helen Scherrer.

Sheriff's Wife Halts Prisoner.
Ellsworth, Me.—Mrs. F. O. Silsby, wife of the sheriff here, prevented the escape from the county jail of Edwin Goodman, seventeen years old, the confessed murderer of Capt. Harry C. Young. Goodman, aided by another prisoner, had overpowered a deputy sheriff and was taking his keys when Mrs. Silsby appeared. She locked the outer door of the jail and then sounded an alarm.

USEFUL COLLAR BAG.

10-10-25.

Whether intended for one's personal use or as a gift for some fortunate friend, this design will make a practical and pretty collar bag. It may be worked on linen, crash, denim or other fabric, either white or colored. As the design itself suggests, a darker shade should be used for the large flower and for the very small dots, while the smaller flower and the spray of leaves may be of a lighter shade. The selection of colors in silks or floras must depend upon the taste of the person who is to use the bag, and it is always safe to use plain white when in doubt, as this will go with the decoration of any room.

The above pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

A featured feature of the congress will be the presentation of a report on the condition of child labor in the United States, and the congress will also discuss the problem of child labor.

JUDGE AND JURY CLASH.

Twelve Men Refuse to Sign Verdict Ordered by Court.

Memphis, Tenn., May 21.—Judge and jury clashed in the second division of the criminal court here, and, as a result, a verdict acquitting a man of a murder charge was made a part of the court record, without the signatures of the jurors.

C. E. Murrell, railroad fireman, was charged with having murdered Moss Todd. Presiding Judge Palmer ruled that the evidence showed self-defense, and directed a verdict of not guilty. "Suppose we do not think he is not guilty?" suggested several of the men. "But I do," returned the court. "Write your verdict accordingly."

After consultation with members of the jury, Foreman Cooney refused to write the verdict.

Judge Palmer explained that he could permit no other verdict to stand in view of the testimony.

"You have a right to your opinion," returned Cooney, still obstinate, "but you are not the keeper of my conscience."

Finally, however, the verdict was written, but the jurors earned their point to the extent of not affixing their signatures.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD.

Dogs Continue Search of Brutal Slayer of Little Girl.

Pittsburg, May 21.—A drizzling rain probably ended the usefulness of bloodhounds in the case of the man who brutally murdered little Grace Johnson as she stopped to pick wild flowers on her way from her home in Level Green to the Trafford school.

While two suspects were under arrest, bloodhounds had followed a trail which they picked up on May 15 from the Johnson home, for nearly 25 miles. The eagerness of the hounds, and the nature of the trail, pointed the finger of blame on the most likely one of the two.

ON WEST VIRGINIA SOIL.

Senator Kern Proposes to Hold Mining Investigation.

Washington, May 21.—Senator Kern and supporters of his resolution for an inquiry into labor conditions in the Paint Creek and Cabin Creek coal fields in West Virginia, plan to have the inquiry, provided it is authorized by the senate, conducted on West Virginia soil.

That the committee on education and labor, to which the resolution has been referred, will report it favorably seemed assured, the only question being the approval by the senate of the committee's recommendation. Champions of the resolution predict it will pass.

The purpose to hold the inquiry in West Virginia, it is said, is to accommodate the witnesses and also to avert any possibility of trouble arising from calling workers to Washington from the mines. If the resolution passes it is proposed to begin the inquiry next week.

Bible Saves Youths.

Lima, O., May 21.—Musty pages from old family Bibles brought into the municipal court during a preliminary hearing, will save Fred Griffith and Thomas Evans, charged with attacking two little girls, from the state penitentiary. The birth records in the Bibles showed that neither lad has attained the age of 17. They will be turned over to the juvenile court (Friday) and Evans were held on a charge of attacking Lucille Geering, 13, and Lucille Hubbard, 5, little girls.

TO BE OPERATED ON

Fred Shearer will undergo a serious operation at the City hospital this afternoon.

CHICKEN FAMINE CONTINUES.

New York Market Men Refuse to Accept Loaded "Crops."

New York, May 21.—There was no relief from conditions in the live poultry market in this city. A strong guard of market men picketed the receiving houses closely and practically no chickens were sold. The strikers insist that the receivers shall not do a jobbing business.

The market men are determined to do away with the loaded "crops" in chickens. Every car of live poultry coming to New York from the west is accompanied by a man to keep the poultry in good condition. The ordinary shrinkage on a car from the Missouri river is 500 to 600 pounds. Many cars recently arriving showed over weight, and this crop-stuffing is done by the man in charge of the car. For every car arriving without shrinkage the car man is given $5 by the shipper. If it is 500 pounds over-weight he gets $10 and if 1,000 pounds $15. Some of the cars have been known to run overweight recently as high as 1,750 pounds.

All live poultry coming here is sold to the Hebrew trade.

ELOPERS CAPTURED.

Paris Maiden Torn From Mexican Lover by Immigration Officials.

New York, May 21.—United States immigration officials who boarded the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II at quarantine immediately found Senor Carlos Dominguez and a young woman companion. They explained to the ship's officers that a cable had been received from the young woman's mother in Paris saying that her daughter had run off with Senor Dominguez and asking that the young woman be detained and returned to her home.

The senior formerly had been an attaché of the Mexican legation at Paris, the ship officers had learned, was about 26 years old and was a member of a family of wealth and position in Mexico City.

Senor Dominguez and his companion were taken to Ellis Island. It is probable that he will be allowed to continue his journey to Mexico City if he wishes, but his young woman companion probably will have to go back to Cherbourg when the Kaiser sails again.

Had Plenty But Starves to Death

Yonkers, N. Y., May 10.—In the spacious residence occupied by herself and her brother on a fashionable residence street here, Ada Duncomb, a middle-aged spinster, was found dead last night a victim of starvation, according to Coroner Dunn. So far as the searchers could discover there was no food in the house.

The authorities stepped into the case when a physician whom S. Whitney Duncomb, Jr., 60, the dead woman's brother, had summoned, found Miss Duncomb dead on a couch in her bedroom, her body clad in mere rags, and notified the Coroner.

The Duncomb residence has been a house of mystery to the neighbors for twelve years since the family moved here, the blinds always being drawn, no servants being employed and no one ever being seen to visit the mansion. The officials who visited the place today reported that the costly old furniture seemed to be falling to pieces from neglect while dust and dirt had been allowed to accumulate, apparently for years.

Duncomb was reticent as to herself and the family affairs in general, only saying he would go to New Jersey to notify relatives there of his sister's death. Neighbors believed the pair to be wealthy.

Summer Wash Fabrics Of Special Mention.

Many women delight in doing their own sewing. For those who desire making their dresses we are showing a wonderful assortment of pretty wash materials the kind that you can put in the tub and take them out looking as fresh and pretty as new. For dainty summer frocks we recommend the following as being extra values at their respective prices.

Windsor Mercerised Plisse

One of the choicest fabrics shown this season. An abundance of beautiful colorings, neat stripe effects 24 inches wide these will save you a lot of work during the sweltering weather as you don't have to iron them. Per yard 18c.

Swivel Silk Crepe

On the order of Windsor Plisse, with the silk added, a pretty filmy material that you will admire, 24 inches wide and one of our winners at Per yard 25c.

Crepe Chiffon

This being the smallest weave of the crinkle family thus the name crepe, like the others we have mentioned—no ironing. In very pretty and dainty shades. 24 inches wide at 35c the yard.

Pretty Marquisettes

These lend themselves readily to the pretty draped effects and are becoming more popular all the time. A very fine weave and beautiful silky appearing fabric. 27 inches wide at 35c per yard.

Utility Cloth

The popular fabric for Middy's and Russian blouse suits in all the popular plain colors 36 inches wide, a cloth that will give an untold amount of service and easily ironed Per yard 30c.

Krinkle Krinkle

The old fashioned seasonable searsucker under a new name. Just the material for children's romper suits and dozens of other garments 27 inches wide. Note our price. Per yard 12½c.

See these at our wash goods counter with numerous other pretty materials for Summer 1913.

CREATES NEW DUCHY.

Kaiser to Present Son-in-Law With Throne as Wedding Gift.

Berlin, May 21.—The Kaiser's principal gift to Prince Ernest of Cumberland and Princess Victoria Louise, the emperor's daughter, whose marriage is to be celebrated Saturday next, will be a throne. The Kaiser, it is declared, intends to proclaim Brunswick an independent duchy with Prince Ernest and Princess Victoria as its first reigning sovereigns. The Bundesrath, it is added, has already completed the legal and political formalities, and Brunswick, the capital of the future duchy, is busily preparing a state entry for the new rulers. This step on the part of the Kaiser is looked upon as the ending of the long-standing feud between the Hohenzollerns and the Guelphs, to which the house of Brunswick belongs.

Investigate Educator's Conduct.

Youngstown, O., May 21.—Investigation of charges of misconduct against Charles B. Dyke, principal of South high school, were started by N. H. Chaney, superintendent of schools, and Mason E. Evans, president of the board of education. The investigation was forced by the Woman's Club League, after many unwholesome stories concerning Professor Dyke were circulated.

Grass Widow Kills Farmer.

Manchester, O., May 21.—George Garrett, 49, a farmer, was shot and killed by Mrs. Louise Franklin, 39, Mrs. Franklin, who is separated from her husband, went to Garrett's home and shot him. Garrett's wife was a witness to the killing. The bullet entered the man's mouth. Jealousy is supposed to have been the cause of the tragedy. Mrs. Franklin gave herself up.

O'Hara's Good Name Cleared.

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—Lieutenant Governor O'Hara was cleared of all suspicion of immoral conduct in a report submitted to the senate by Senator Fitzsimons, who headed an examining committee instructed to investigate charges that O'Hara had sustained improper relations with Mrs. Maude Robinson in the Hotel Sherman in Chicago Jan. 17, 18 and 19, 1912.

Emma Goldman Jailed.

San Diego, Cal., May 21.—Emma Goldman and her manager, Dr. Ben Hoffman, were arrested here and lodged in the city jail. Miss Goldman was scheduled to deliver a lecture here.

SYMPATHIZES WITH JAPS.

English Newspaper Considers Bryan's Utterances Injudicious.

London, May 21.—Referring to the feeling of the Japanese that the action of the California legislature is an insult to their country, the Evening Globe says:

"The victors of Sha-Ho and Teushima will not be easily persuaded of their unfitness for the privileges granted without demerit to the most degraded Ruthenians and Slovaks. No race can be expected to acquiesce in such an invidious distinction merely because they happen to be on the wrong side of an arbitrary color line which does not exclude the negro of the southern states."

The Globe thinks Secretary Bryan's pacific utterances are peculiarly injudicious, inasmuch as they are likely to stiffen the backs of the Japanese, remarking that "Many wars have arisen through no cause beyond the belief that one side believed the other side would not fight," citing as an instance the Crimean war.

WAR SPIRIT IS AROUSED.

Japs Rampant For Mix-Up With the United States.

Tokyo, May 21.—Since the news that the California alien land ownership bill had been signed by Governor Johnson was received here, the government has redoubled its efforts to pacify public opinion in the belief that Washington will find a peaceful solution of the problem. It is felt, however, that it will be difficult to stem the tide of popular anger against the United States, as the Japanese generally regard the issue as one involving their national honor.

The bankers and big business men of the country are strongly in favor of moderation, and are bending all their efforts to avoid a conflict, but considerable alarm is evident in official circles at the attitude of the lower classes, who seem to desire war on any pretext and on any conditions. The old Samurai spirit appears to be reviving.

Wilson's Blackmailers Convicted.

Newark, N. J., May 21.—Jacob Dunn, alias "Nig," and Seely Davenport, alias "Snake," who were arrested at Morristown last December charged with having attempted to blackmail President Wilson before and after his election, were found guilty in the United States district court. The indictment on which the men were tried before Judge Rallstab and a jury charged that they had written a letter to Mr. Wilson on May 26 and Nov. 11 of last year, in which they demanded $1,000 in gold in one and $5,000 in the other, under penalty of death if he failed to comply with the demand. The maximum penalty is 20 years in prison and a fine of $5,000. The prisoners were remanded to jail to await sentence.

Seven Killed in Landslide.

Hinton, W. Va., May 21.—Five men, a woman and a little girl were killed on the Sewell railroad, which connects Sewell with Landisburg, 40 miles west of Hinton. A lumber engine and train of three freight cars and caboose used for passengers was stopped by a small slide ahead. Later another slide came down, carrying all but the engine 300 feet below.

Brands Story as Absurd.

Columbus, O., May 21.—Former National Committeeman Harvey C. Garber denied that he had said to Secretary of State W. J. Bryan that former Governor Judson Harmon will be a candidate for United States senator in 1914, and that Harmon men were trying to build up a machine for him in opposition to President Wilson. He said the story is absurd.

FIGHTS FOR PURE FOOD

New York Woman Lawyer Plans to Spread Movement.

Miss Helen V. Boswell of New York is one of the prominent women of this city who are backing a new movement to secure pure food for the housekeepers of America. She is a lawyer and was especially active in behalf of the Republican party during the last presidential campaign. She is a director of the newly organized society known as Our Daily Food Alliance the purpose of which is to demand pure food from the dealer and prosecute violations. It is planned to spread the movement into as many large cities as possible, securing the aid of women who are interested in civic improvement and uplift. It is known that all reputable retailers approve such a campaign of arrests.

CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER BABIES IN CAPITAL CITY

Columbus, O., May 20.—Columbus today began a campaign for better babies. The first exhibit of youngsters will be June 2 under auspices of the Godman guild. Others will follow, the winners being qualified to take part in the sweepstakes test this fall at the state fair.

Behind the movement is the entire list of woman's clubs in Columbus, directed by Mrs. Maude M. Miller. Other cities in the state are expected to take similar action and the gathering of prize winning babies, scored under national rules, will form a new exhibit at the state fair.

Any lusty youngster may be entered. Grades on scientific lines of humane perfection will determine the winners.
